Objectives

What does a good Account Plan look like?

Cornerstones of the Siemens Account Plan

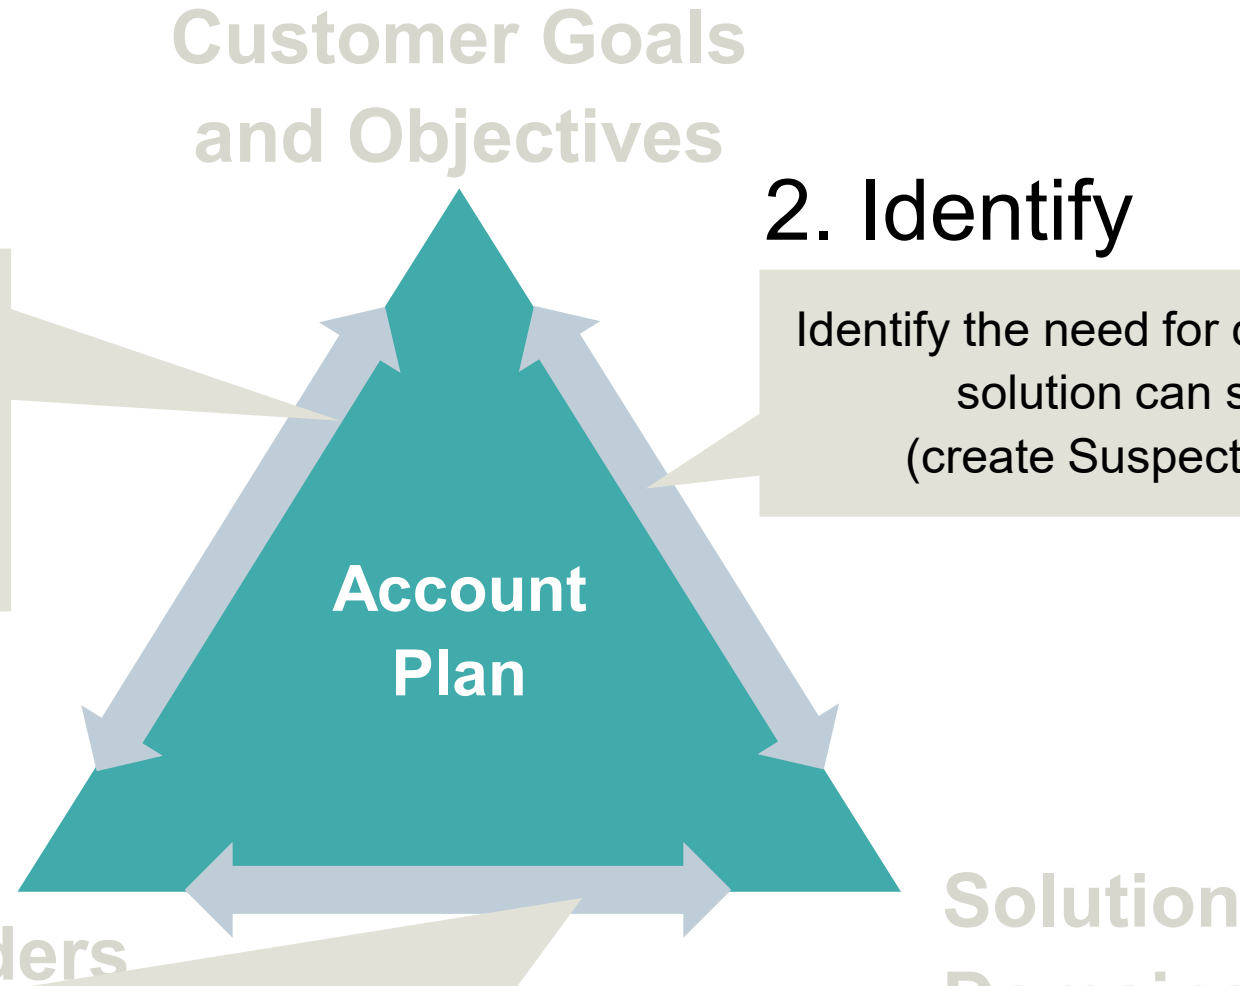

Building the Account Plan

1. Research

Understand who the executive stakeholders are, the Customer's business goals and objectives, and who is responsible

2. Identify

Identify the need for change and how our solution can support them (create Suspect Opportunities)

3. Execute

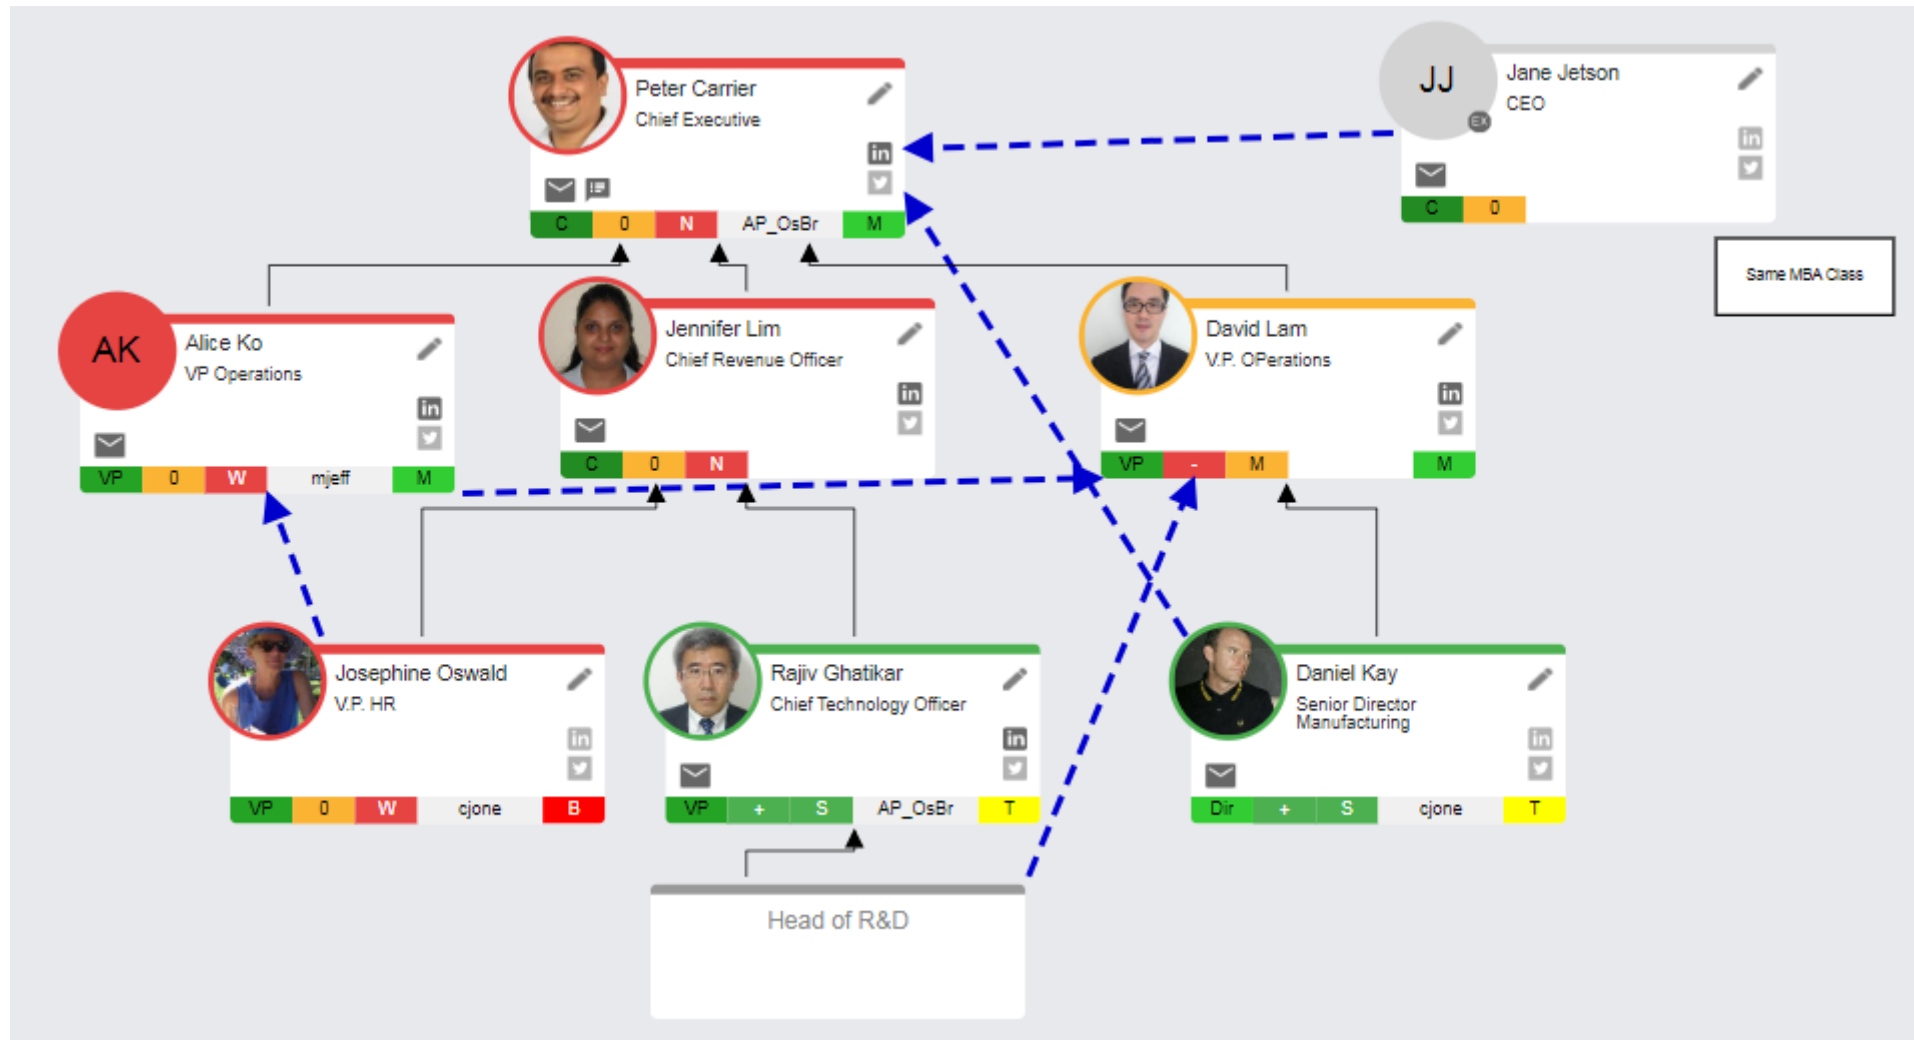

Confirm key stakeholders who support the development of a Suspect into an Opportunity and develop strategic roadmaps with the customer

Lets start with our Contact Records in SFDC

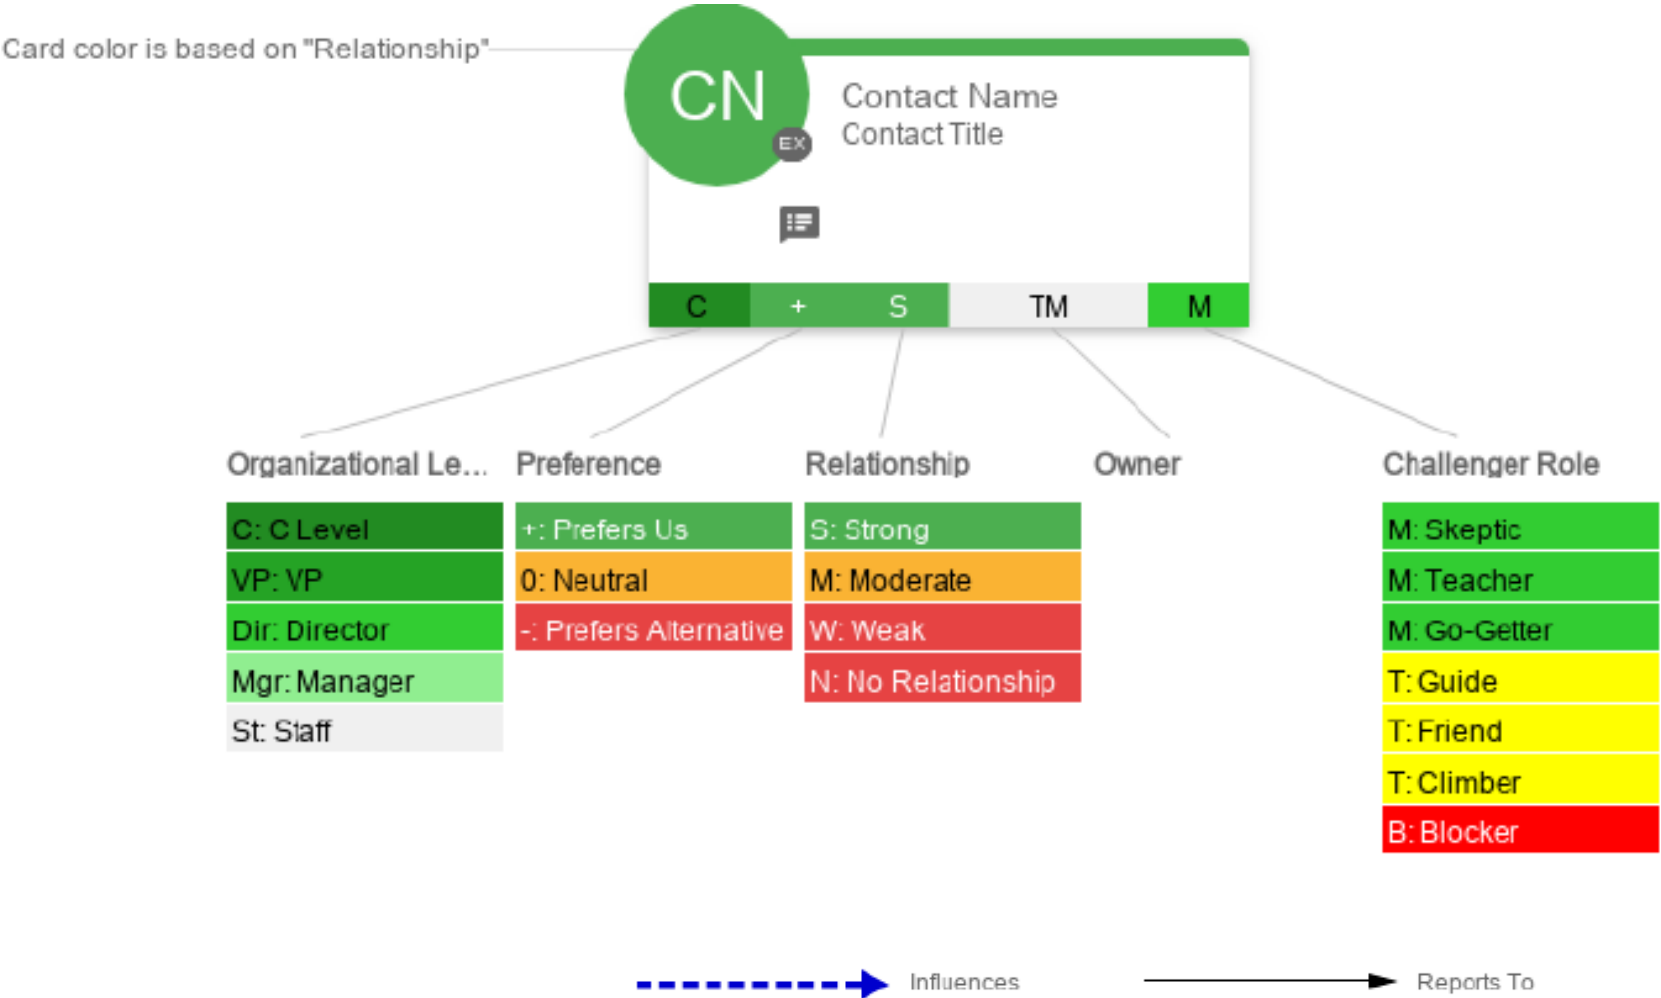

The screenshot shows the Salesforce user interface. At the top, there's a navigation bar with tabs for Chatter, Groups, Leads, Accounts, Contacts, Opportunities, Reports, Dashboards, Forecasts, Documents, Files, and Activities. Below this, the left sidebar contains a list of items, including 'Revegy Sandbox AP (TEST - Internal Only)', 'RUTI SUZUKI INDIA LTD', 'L-pFMEA_PE', 'L_HEEDS', 'L_Paint OLP', 'a Classification Society', 'ech Technology. elopment JSC', 'ech Technology. elopment JSC', and 'Sensors Asia Pte. Ltd.'. The main content area displays the 'Contacts' page for 'Revegy Sandbox AP (TEST - Internal Only)'. It includes a 'New Contact' button and a table of contact records.

Oops! No Relationship!

What is she saying about us?!

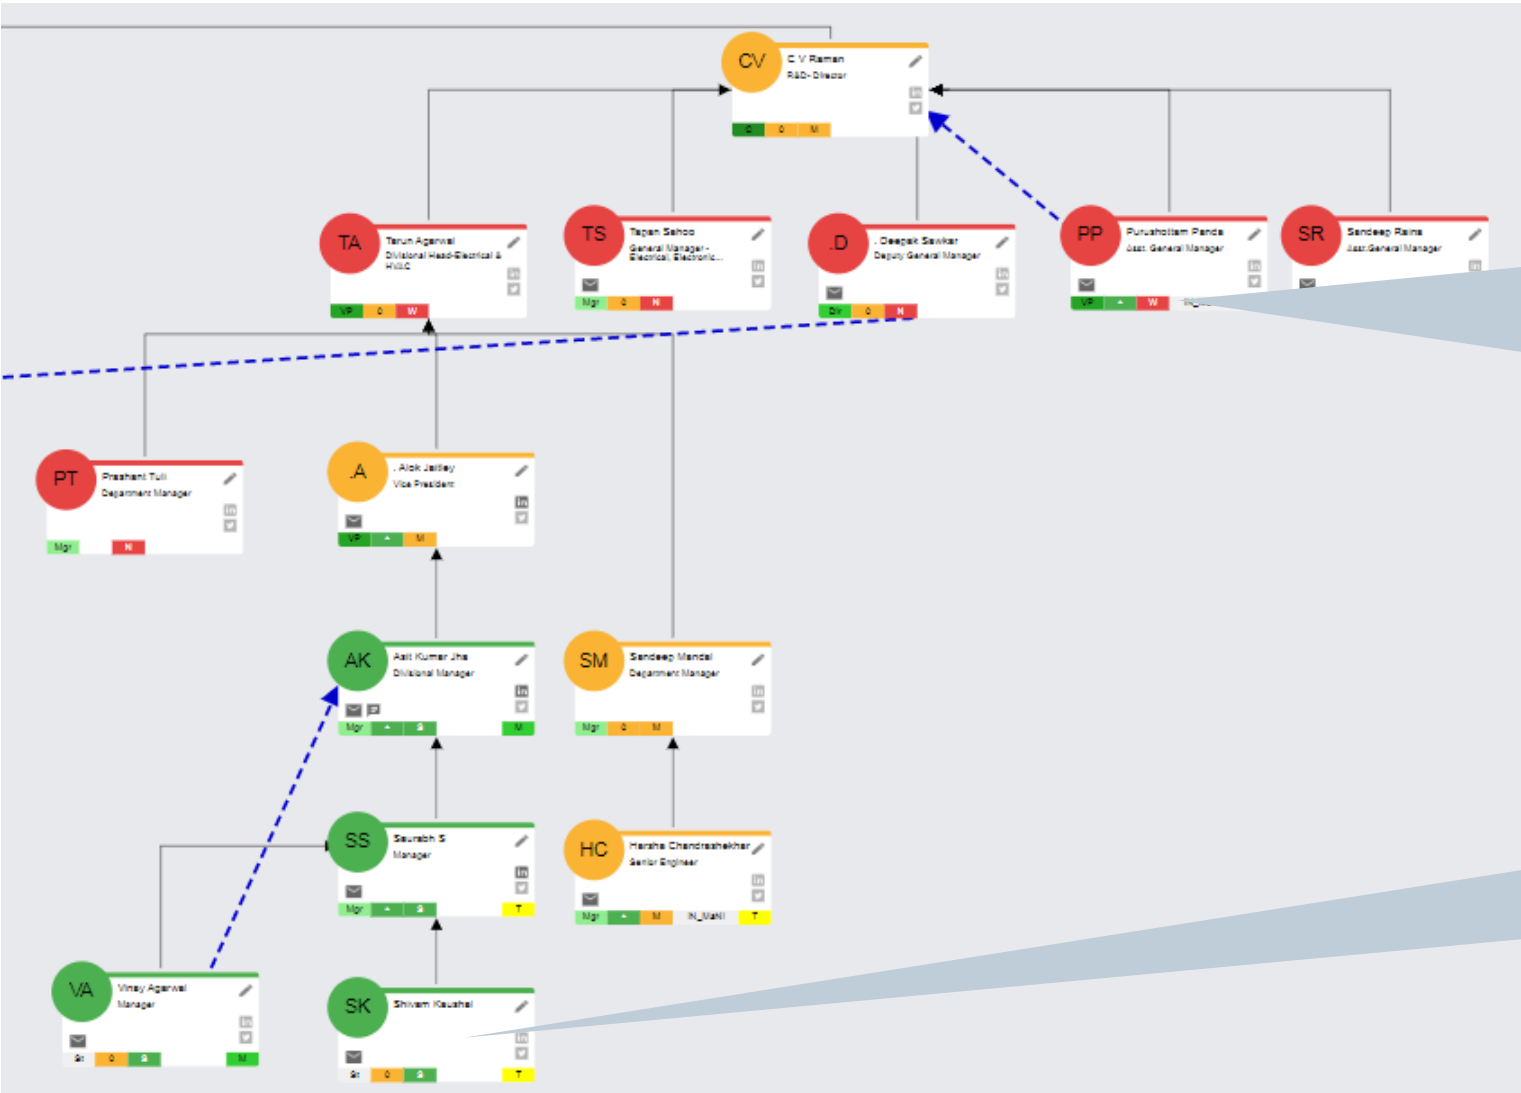

Caution! A blocker who influences a key stakeholder!

A key stakeholder prefers the opposition and no one is talking to him!

Who is this?

Oh No!
We are now associated with a Climber

The truth is never bad – avoiding the truth is.

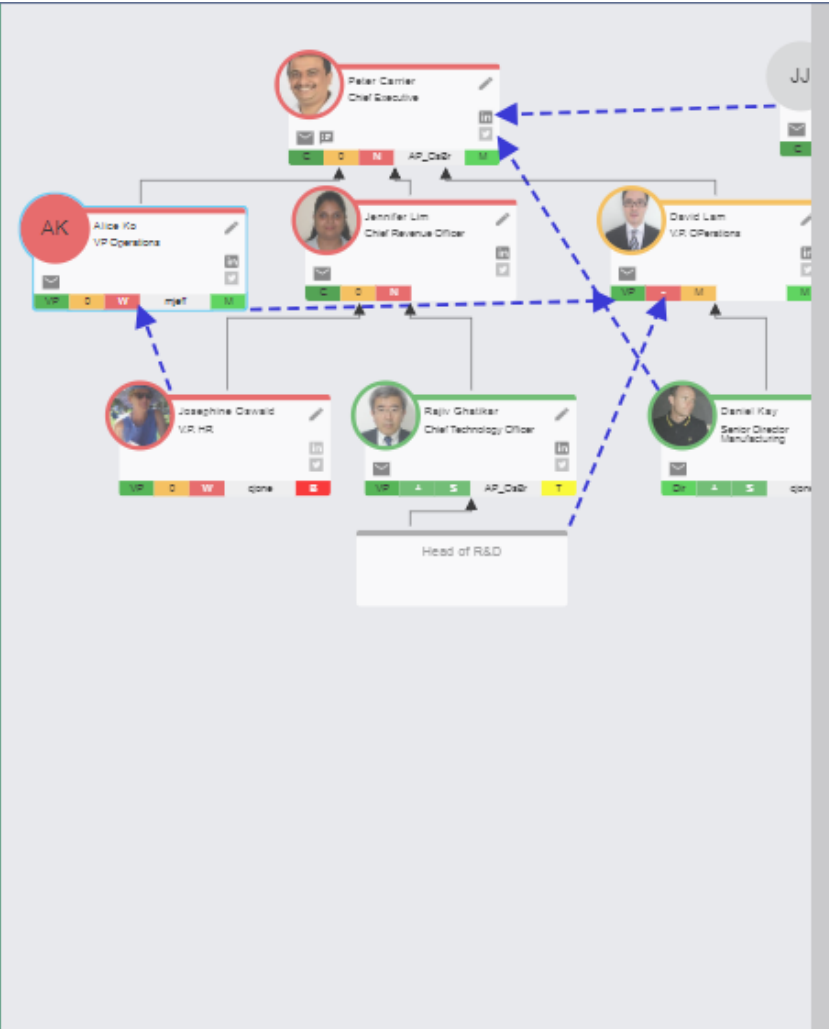

Red means no Relationship

These people define strategy, are hired for paid and measured on achieving goals, They set the budgets and make the transformative investment decisions.

Green means strong Relationship

This is where we sell. Too often to a Talker

What does a good Account Plan Look Like?
It has a plan to build and maintain strong relationships with key customer stakeholders. AND we flawlessly execute the plan.

Why do I need a Relationship Map? You cant possibly do you job without one!

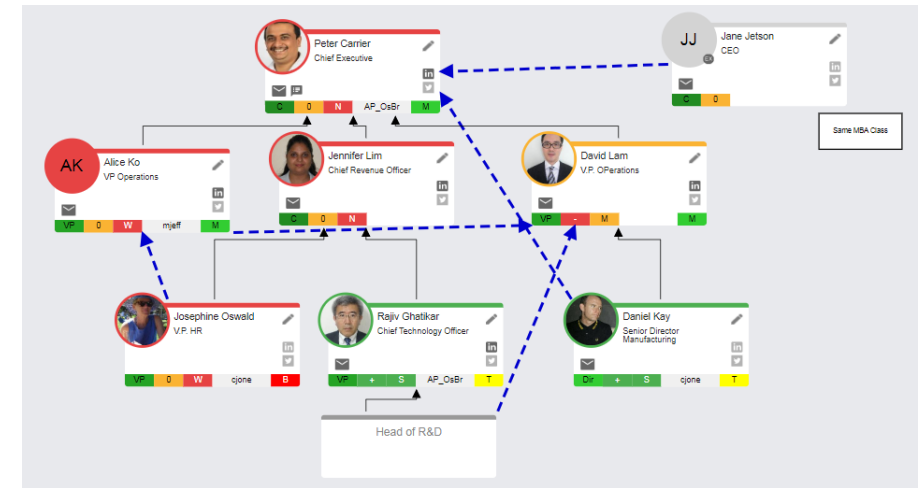

C.E.B's research on Challenger clearly show that there is no longer a single decision maker – decisions are made by a group of people who struggle to reach consensus on the right business decision to make for their business.

Customers are loyal to Orchestrators who

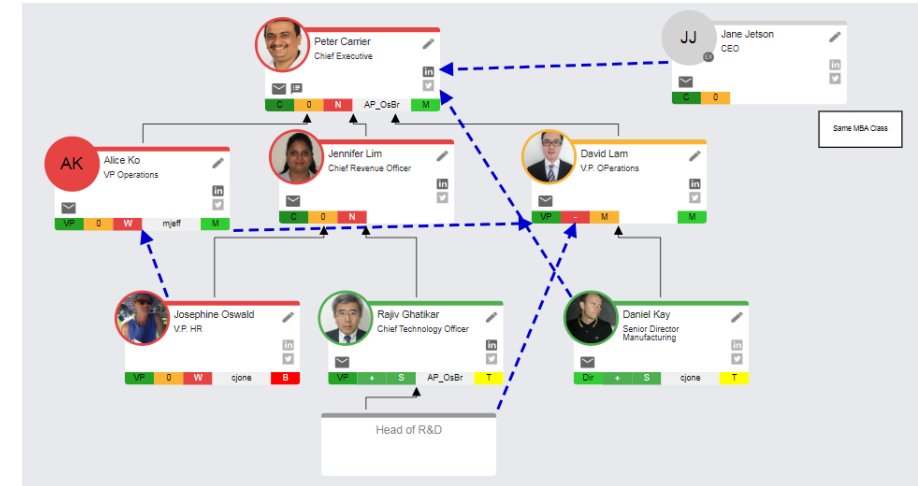

- Brings unique perspectives on their industry
- help groups reach consensus

How do I build a Relationship Map? I cant possibly my job without one!

- Start with who you know.
- Ask for an Organization Chart
- Ask them to introduce you to their Peers
- Go to the Web and search sites like LinkedIn to find new contacts
- Meet people when they are not in a buying cycle and ask them what's important to them, and how they are measured .
- Classify them as best you can as a Mobilizer, Talker or Blocker as best you can

What does a good Account Plan Look Like?

It contains a Customer Strategy Map

We understand the external market THREATS and OPPORTUNITIES to our customer's business.

We know their GOALS and who owns those goals

We know the customer's BUSINESS OBJECTIVES in support of their goals and who is accountable

We know the Customers Business Initiatives in support of their objectives and who is accountable

We clearly understand how our opportunities fit into initiatives in support of objectives and goals and who cares.

How do I get the information to build a Customer Strategy Map.
I cant do my job without it

ASK YOUR KEY STAKEHOLDERS.

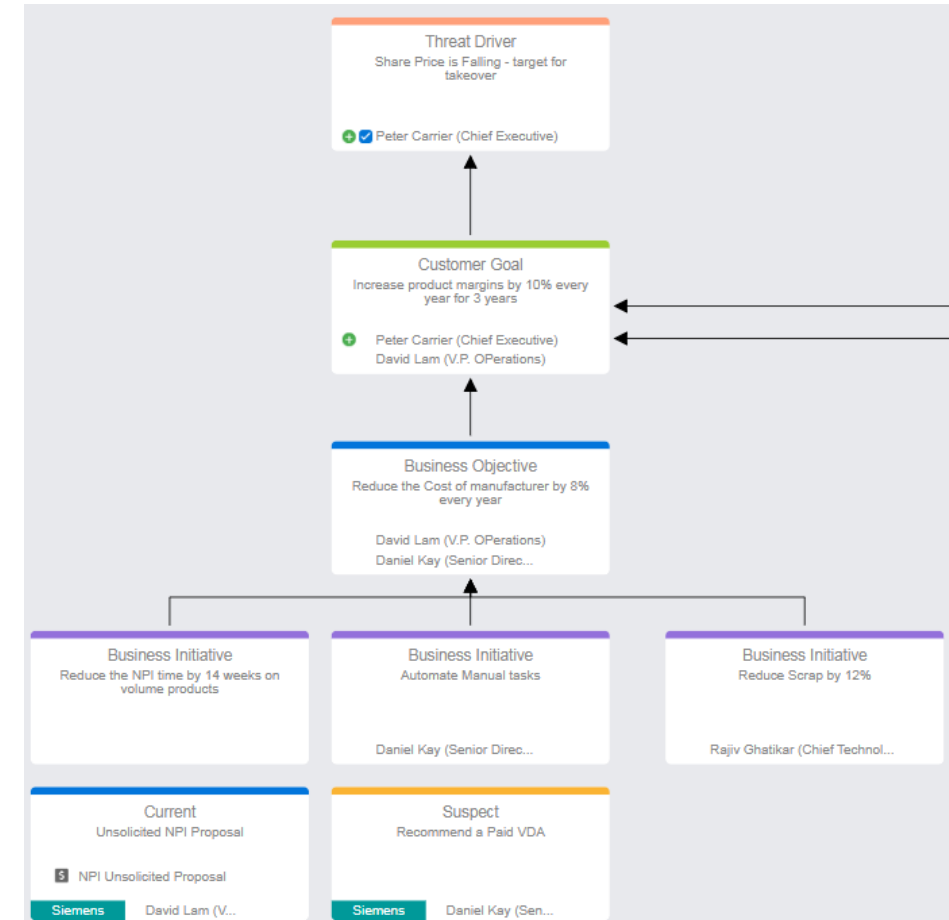

What are the Business Goals for this year?

Who owns each Goal?

What Business Objectives have you set for the year?

What Business Initiatives have you started to meet those Objectives?

Who owns those Business Initiatives?

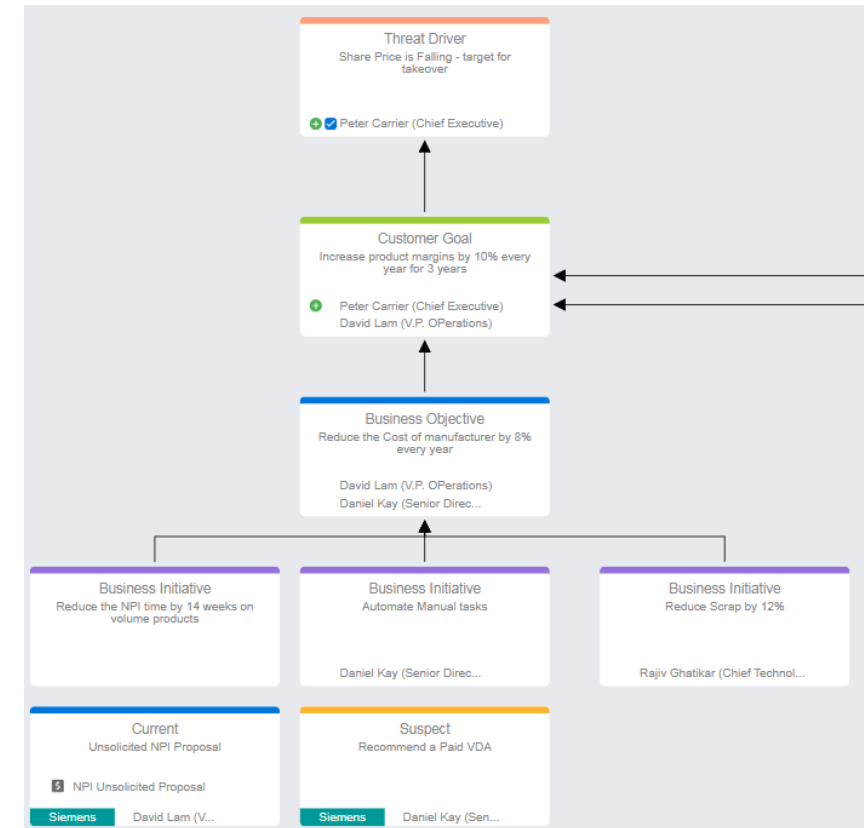

What do I do if my Opportunity does not match up with an agreed Customer Business Initiative, Objective or Goal?

Stop selling the software and do one of three things.

1. Disengage.
2. Convince the customer to create an initiative for the customers' next budgeting cycle.
3. Convince the customer that your opportunity delivers more value than their established initiatives

What does a good Account Plan Look Like? Well – it's a plan!
